

Developing appropriate terminology to build confidence in engaging with ethnically diverse communities to allow for respect a relatability.

There has been a growing concern and appetite for change when looking at terminology and language, surrounding how we describe the communities impacted by racial discrimination. This guide starts the discussion on what terminology and language the sport and physical activity sector should use when dealing with or describing racial discrimination and inequality.

Systemic racism is incredibly complex and to tackle it effectively, we need terminology and language which is more specific to the communities experiencing racism in order to improve inclusivity. Understanding what is and is not appropriate terminology and language is the first step to helping us have more confident and respectful discussions about the issue of racial discrimination and inequality.

Terminology will continue to be fluid and progress as society expands and grows. The important value to take away from this resource is how vital community engagement is not only in regard to terminology but wider inclusion and diversity aims. With strong community engagement we can continue to hold these conversations to ensure the correct terminology is being adopted and we stay in tune to specific community needs with due respect and empathy.

The sport and physical activity sector should ensure consideration is given to appropriate terminology and language when seeking to engage with the diverse communities that they wish to attract. This guide therefore provides information on factors to be considered in the ongoing discussion of terminology and language and when developing good sector and organisational practice.

Outdated/Inaccurate Terms	Why	Suggested Alternate Terms	Why
Black Asian and Minority Ethnic (BAME) or Black and Minority Ethnic (BME)	We recommend that the terms Black Asian and Minority Ethnic or Black and Minority Ethnic, or the acronyms BAME or BME are not used – as they are unhelpful in description. These terms blend ethnicity, geography, nationality – and in doing so erases key identity reducing it to an 'other.' These descriptions also imply that individuals are a homogeneous group. Both descriptions also single out specific ethnic groups, which can be divisive and exclusionary. The descriptions also tend to refer to people who are not white, which excludes white ethnic groups who may also be under-represented or face barriers.	 Be specific if you can on who you are describing e.g. British Black African heritage, British Indian heritage, Chinese heritage, Somali heritage, British Pakistani heritage etc. In the UK, if a generic term is required, then use the term 'ethnically diverse communities' to refer to those communities that face racism and/or inequality due to not being described as 'White.' Other terms include "historically underrepresented ethnic communities" and "culturally diverse communities." Also explain any generic terms with more specific descriptions of who in particular you are looking to engage. 	These specific terms show an awareness of the need to develop actions to address specific inequality.

Minority Ethnic or Ethnic Minority	We recommend that the terms minority ethnic or ethnic minority are not used – as the communities that this term describes fails to realise that the origins of these communities are not in any way a minority. There are many cities and towns; they are much larger than a minority and globally are the majority by culture, ethnic identity and other factors. For example, there are many groups defined under minority ethnic, including those of Romany heritage, Irish traveller heritage, South East Asian heritage, West and Central Asian heritage and more. minority is a term that can imply inferiority, be viewed negatively or being of lower priority and therefore suggests that less resources are needed when in fact the	Be specific if you can on who you are describing e.g. Romany Heritage, Irish Traveller, Arab community, Polish, Portuguese, Somali, Bangladeshi, Chinese etc.	These terms provide acknowledgement of the harm caused and gives context in many instances where a collective term is sought. It will also require you to then articulate who you are referring to, and may, depending on context, refer to British South East Asian heritage people, Romany heritage and others whose disadvantaged is not captured by the terminology. Please use with awareness the phrase 'people who experience racism', and don't make it an acronym ever.
Coloured	opposite is true. This is regarded as an offensive and/or inaccurate term. In the UK and USA for many people this term has uncomfortable resonance with the racist terminology 'coloureds.'	Be more specific (see above). If you are defining groups who have experienced racism then please use: • 'people who experience racism' or 'communities who have been impacted by racism.' • Followed up by more detail on who you are describing.	Specific terms show an awareness of the need to develop actions to address any inequality. Support these generic terms with more specific descriptions of who in particular you are looking to engage.

Blacks	This is an offensive term. Never say 'blacks' just as you wouldn't say 'whites.' The singular term Black is used by some people to describe an ethnic group or as a 'political' term to describe all those individuals that are discriminated or disadvantaged due to not being seen as White.	Be specific if you can on who you are describing, for example: • Ghanaian Heritage, British Jamaican Heritage, Senegalese, Ethiopian etc. • 'African Caribbean' 'People of African or Caribbean heritage.' • The specific if you can on who you are describing, hugely varied ethnic diverse communities that fall under this generic term. We need to recognise the individual ethnically diverse communities and not group toget under one generic term. By recognising the individual cultur you will enable a leve of respect, empathy and relatability with your audience.	cally s ne s her g res
Hard to Reach	This is seen as ignorant and a negative perception of the little expertise or empathy an organisation may have to ethnically diverse communities. The term also implies that the individuals/communities choose to not engage.	 'People/ communities who face barriers to participation/ engagement.' 'Underrepresented communities' 'Disengaged communities' This highlights an awareness of societ barriers and challer that individuals/ communities face, which then leads to them not being engaged as much as they could be or cho to be. 	iges
People of Colour	This term originated in the USA, and is increasing in its usage in the USA and more recently the UK. The term resembles the term 'coloured people' and has similar connotations to that word, as well as assuming a 'white centric' view of colour.	Be more specific on who you are describing e.g. • African communities, Caribbean, Somali, Nigerian Heritage, Grenadian, Indian, Vietnamese etc. The specific terms show an awareness of the need to develous actions to address a inequality. Use spectomery terms for who you a looking to engage.	op ny ific

Please note: For administrative purposes e.g. website, presentations or policy use, sometimes collective terminology is needed. Use terms such as ethnically diverse communities, historically underrepresented communities, or culturally diverse communities to refer to those communities that face racism and/or inequality due to not being described as 'White.' and diverse ethnic communities when attempting to create more diversity amongst all ethnic groups, including White people.
